If the $_POST variable isn't set, I want to check the form fields to make sure they aren't empty. If they are empty, they get submitted to the page. $first_name = isset($_POST['first_name'])? $_POST['first_name'] : ""; $last_name = isset($_POST['last_name'])? $_POST['last_name'] : ""; $email = isset($_POST['email'])? $_POST['email'] : ""; $message = isset($_POST['message'])? $_POST['message'] : ""; If $first_name is empty, I want to check $last_name and $email, if they are empty, I want to send an email with an error message. A: You could use in_array to check if $_POST['yourfieldname'] is empty: if(!isset($_POST['yourfieldname'])) { //THE FIELD IS EMPTY } else { //THE FIELD IS NOT EMPTY } Electrochemical evaluation of the performance of in situ-formed solid-implant against gingivitis. Q: Javascript Array.join unexpected behavior Problem: I have a snippet of html that is using javascript (below) to retrieve an array of parsed data and print it to the page in a list. However, the data is showing up in the below order: This order is in reverse. I thought that maybe the order was somehow related to the fact that the data set is coming from a GET request to the server, thus, having it in the correct order was being delayed by a small amount of time? However, I even had the entire page refreshed just to ensure that the data set was in the same order. Still, it's not working. I thought that maybe it was the array that I'm trying to put together for the page? Therefore, I created a new array (using $.each()) and then looped through all of the content from the first array and pushed it into the new array. I ended up with the same result. I thought that maybe the browser was allowing the page to finish rendering before allowing the rest of my javascript to run? Code: // data being retrieved var $data = $("." + sorting-selector); var data = []; $.each($data, function(i, item) { data.push(item.getAttribute("data-from-server")); }); // formatting the array in reverse var pagedata = data.reverse(); $(".sorting-selector").on("change", function() { var dataIndex = this.selectedIndex; var newData = pagedata[dataIndex]; $(".sorting-selector").not(this).each(function() { if (this.selectedIndex == dataIndex) { $(this).text(data[dataIndex]); } else { $(this).text(newData[dataIndex]); } }); }); Tests: Place the page in the Chrome's 'Inspect' view and click on the 'Console' tab to ensure the console is not blocked
